

Joshua Palkki is Assistant Professor of Vocal/Choral Music Education at California State University, Long Beach where he leads the University Choir and prepares future choral music educators. He holds degrees from Michigan State University (Ph.D., music education), Northern Arizona University (M.M., choral conducting), and Ball State University (B.S., music education). A nationally sought-after guest conductor and scholar on LGBTQ issues in music education, he has guest conducted in several states and presented at state and national research and practitioner choral and music education conferences, including two ACDA National Conferences. Joshua's writing appears in several journals including Choral Journal, Research Studies in Music Education, and Journal of Research in Music Education. Palkki serves the California Choral Directors Association as Repertoire and Resources Chair for Student Activities.